DMACC apartment dwellers generally responsive

DMACC students who rent apartments in Ankeny seem to be a mixed blessing, based on reports from various Ankeny renters.

Out of the eight Ankeny renting establishments, seven had good reports on the DMACC students they rented to. However, the one negative report of student vandalism was extensive and serious enough to cast doubt on the desirability of renting to students.

Pete Ducharme, of Ankeny, rents 31 apartments to DMACC students.

"I have had no problems with students. No vandalism. They cooperate well with me and I plan to continue renting to them," he said.

The one problem with vandalism was cited by John Leavengood of Stanbrough Reality.

"We rent 150 apartments in Ankeny. A year ago about half of these were rented to DMACC students. But recently we had such severe vandalism that we have cut our student rental to 20 percent and are seriously considering not renting to any students in the future," Leavengood said.

He cited instances of students damaging water heaters, breaking water pipes, tearing doors off of washers and dryers and shredding plastic carpet runners in hallways.

"These damages weren't normal wear and tear but deliberate and malicious," he said.

Leavengood added that it wasn't always this way, that a few years ago DMACC students were some of his best renters.

Mark Kendall, manager of Tower Three Apartments, rents 48 apartments, a third of which are rented to DMACC students.

"Students are prompt with their rent, and are generally well behaved," Kendall said.

Mrs. Felix Hach, of Ankeny, rents eight apartments to students.

"I have had no problems with vandalism. Students here respect each other and they respect me," Hach said.

"No problems" with DMACC students was the general consensus among the rest of the Ankeny renters questioned.

Leonard Bengtson vice president of Student Life, said he was pleased to hear the positive response to DMACC students, and regretted the one report of vandalism.

"We feel we have an obligation to help students find housing.

Reports like these make the job seem more worthwhile and rewarding," he said.

"Information like this also reinforces our belief that most students are responsible people," he said.

Bomb scare

A bomb check in the buildings on the Ankeny campus Oct. 6 turned out to be just a security measure, according to Quentin Preston, supervisor for custodians and grounds.

The search for a bomb began after the Ankeny police department received a telephone call. The caller said, "There is a bomb in your school." Ankeny police alerted both DMACC and the Ankeny public schools.

Preston said that the security department inspected all the buildings and no bomb was found.

"We tried to avoid disrupting the students as much as possible during the search.

Under federal guidelines, classes are not dismissed during search operations.

"This policy has been recommended because of the amount of lost class time that would result every time a bomb threat is received," Preston said.

In January of 1975 DMACC received another false bomb threat.

A TOTAL of 1,367 people received swine flu shots at the campus clinic. Hydraulic guns were used to administer the vaccine, rather than syringes and needles.

"HERE comes the judge"—in this case, Brad Osgood conducting a mock trial in his Criminal Justice classes.

Criminal justice students conduct mock trial

Brad Osgood, Criminal Justice instructor, sits in front of his class in a black judge's robe, gavel in hand.

In a role-playing situation, the students in Osgood's course on Criminal Justice Procedures are conducting a mock trial reminiscent of the famous Sam Sheppard case.

In 1954, Dr. Sam Sheppard was convicted of murdering his wife after a lengthy trial that had a massive amount of news coverage. In subsequent appeals, the Supreme Court held that Sheppard should be given a new trial as a result of pre-trial publicity.

Osgood selected the Sheppard case because, "I needed a prior case on which to draw some basic facts on which to base a trial," he said.

"Although the Sam Sheppard trial was appealed, based on adverse publicity given by the press, we will depart from the original trial prior to the publicity becoming a factor," said Osgood.

"If we ever have to go to trial we'll know what to expect," said Barbara Jenkins, one of the students in the mock trial.

The trial will last about four weeks. Since the trial is running in two of Osgood's classes, he said, "There is a possibility the two juries will return different verdicts."

The trial started with the opening statement by the prosecuting attorney on Wednesday, Oct. 13. The students are acting out the roles of defendant, defense attorney, witnesses and jury.

Osgood said, "The reason for the mock trial is so the students can apply what is learned in the classroom and to reinforce learning." Osgood said, "Students are welcome to come in and watch as long as there are empty seats." He added that students would add to the realism.

The mock trial is held in Room 3110 11 a.m. - 12N on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, and from 8 - 9:30 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

LARRY MATIJEVICH, "defense attorney," and Barbara Jenkins, "prosecuting attorney," argue a point of law with the "judge," Brad Osgood.

DMACC instructor 'plays at night'

"All the world's a stage, all men and women merely players. And one man in his time plays many parts." These lines from Shakespeare are especially appropriate for Duane Anderson. DMACC Horticulture instructor.

By day Anderson teaches and manages the greenhouse in Bldg. 7.

But at night his mild-mannered demeanor changes, and he takes on the characteristics of other roles as a member of community theatre groups.

His past roles include the feisty Irish coal miner in the "Unsinkable Molly Brown." He also played a rogue Bob the Saw in the play, "Three Penny Opera."

"Bob the Saw was a hammy part with lots of facial expression," Anderson said with a slow grin, "and I enjoyed doing it."

Anderson's most recent theatre involvement has been with the Purple Cow Theatre group which performs in a remodeled old barn off interstate 80 near Grimes.

Last summer Anderson was asked on the spur of the moment to play the part of the grandfather in the play, "You Can't Take It With You." The man who originally was to play the part unexpectedly quit just two weeks before the play was to open.

"In a moment of weakness, I said I would take the part,"

Anderson said, shaking his head at the recollection.

It involved some fast memorization to catch up with the rest of the cast.

"Learning that part was a real challenge," Anderson said. "The play was a little shaky when we opened." Josef Mossman, of the Des Moines Register, said that the play in his review that the play "creaked a little."

But he was complimentary of Anderson in his role. Anderson's whole family is active in the theatre. His wife, Dorothy, is technical director at the Purple Cow Theatre. And his daughter, Debbi, performed in the musical, "Celebration," which Mossman called "a bouncy delight." One might wonder what the attraction the community theatre holds for Anderson.

"The hours are long. Sometimes rehearsals last until the early hours of the morning. And one certainly doesn't perform in theatre groups for the pay. The Purple Cow Theatre is new and barely breaks even financially," he said.

Then why does he do it? "It's my kind of recreation. Some people play golf, I act. It's fun. And most important, I meet some great people through the theatre," he said.

Anderson is interrupted by one of his students. What should she do with these dead flowers? This leftover dirt?

He answers earnestly. He goes through all the actions of a good instructor.

But over the next few weeks, he won't be just Mr. Anderson, Commercial Horticulture instructor. He'll also be Teddy Brewster in "Arsenic and Old Lace." "I've been looking forward to doing that part for a long time," he said with another slow smile.

Ski club meets

The DMACC ski club held its first meeting Oct. 14th with 25 members present.

They have tentatively planned a chili supper for Nov. 3 at 6 p.m. in Bldg. 25. Funds will be used for promotion and transportation on ski trips.

Future club plans include films and speakers on skiing

ACTING is just part of Anderson's job at the Purple Cow Theatre. Actors and actresses also wait on tables and put on song and dance shows before curtain time.

APPLAUSE and bright lights are not a part of Anderson's job as teacher and greenhouse manager.

Student actions affect all

The growth of DMACC has had some impact on the nearby city of Ankeny. One area affecting the city is students renting apartments and houses there.

Recently one of the Ankeny renters, John Leavengood, was upset enough with student vandalism in his apartments to call Leonard Bengtson vice-president of Student Life. Leavengood called to find out if his problem was an isolated incident or if other renters were having trouble.

Campus Views

Bengtson contacted the newspaper staff who investigated the incident and talked to other Ankeny renters about DMACC students. Fortunately, out of eight renters we talked to, seven had good things to say about student behavior. However, Leavengood's report was serious enough to cause some concern.

A main gripe of students is the difficulty of finding a place to live relatively close to where they attend college. This situation won't improve any if the small number of irresponsible students increases.

We believe Leavengood spoke for most landlords when he said he didn't mind a few noisy student parties or other minor problems that any renters encounter with tenants.

But deliberate acts of vandalism can't be tolerated. A small number of students with their thoughtless destruction of property can adversely affect the attitude people, especially renters, have toward students in general.

Students should be aware that they indirectly represent the college they attend. Their actions can influence what people will think of other students and the college.

Improper behavior hurts the image of the majority of responsible students and affects how students will be treated in the future by the community.

Dear Editor,

After my researching the effects of logging in the Boundary Waters Canoe Area (BWCA), I became quite bewildered at the thought of losing one of the few virgin environments left in the United States. Man needs places to escape society when total relaxation is needed for body and soul. By destroying these areas, we will be, in a way, self-destructing.

The learning of our past history aids us in the

Editor's note: The Boundary Waters Canoe Area (BWCA) is a wilderness in northeastern Minnesota. It may be opened up to loggers as the result of a recent appeals court decision.

Complains of intramural officiating

Dear Editor,

There is a problem with the officiating of the intramural football games. The games I have played in have been inconsistently called with no rule book at the games for clarification.

As a result, rule interpretations change from one play to the next in the same game. Penalty flags are often times thrown late after one team has called the infraction for the referee and had made a better case before the referee than the other team.

There has never been a holding or clipping penalty called to my knowledge, but several unnecessary roughness penalties are called. It must be realized that football is an emotional sport, that the player's flags can not always be grabbed without grabbing the player, knocking someone out of bounds is part of the game, and that blocking is not necessarily playing unnecessarily rough.

I think that it is commendable that the school have an intramural program like it does, but it loses something in the officiating.

advancement into the future. In destroying a place where as much history as the BWCA provides us, we could be endangering our future generations; learning of history and prediction of their future.

Please support the Fraser bill, (HR1456), and oppose the Oberstar bill, (HR10247).
STOP THE LOGGING !!!!!

A proposal by Rep. Fraser of Minnesota gives the BWCA full status as a wilderness area, prohibiting logging, mining, road building, and motorized recreation.

DMACC students return as employees

What do DMACC's students do when they graduate? Some of them come back, as employees instead of students.

Several former students are now employed at DMACC, according to Tom Dart, Placement director. They hold jobs in the print shop, Diesel Mechanics, Welding, College Relations, Commercial Art, and two in Building Trades.

Duane Van Hemert graduated from the Building Trades program in March 1974. He has been that program's instructor for one year.

While he was a student at DMACC, Van Hemert was one of those who helped to build the house in which Superintendent Lowery lives. "I built the cabinets for that house," he said.

Van Hemert now teaches carpentry, cabinet making, wiring, and drafting in his program.

"I enjoyed the program as a student and when the opportunity as an instructor came, I grabbed it," said Van Hemert.

Carol Kachelhoffer came to work at DMACC in July of this year. She is with the College Relations office doing design and art work.

Kachelhoffer

graduated from Commercial Art in the spring of 1976. While a student, she won a contest with her design for the cover of the Iowa road map.

"I enjoyed school here, and it's a nice place to work.

For the future I hope to get into advertising, and someday into freelance art work and design," said Kachelhoffer.

"I love it here," said Rick Cowman, Welding instructor and former student.

Cowman graduated in March, 1974 and began work here in August, 1975. He had three years experience in welding before coming to school, he said.

"I helped the instructor part time after graduation. I like welding, and I like being around people. So when the opening came, I jumped at it," said Cowman.

Robert Taylor, Diesel Mechanics instructor, graduated from DMACC in June 1969, and came to work here in March 1974.

"I like it here real well. I'm impressed with the Diesel Mechanics program," said Taylor, "and I would like to continue teaching here."

DIANE BIDWELL, newly elected Student Senate president, begins her term as head of the recently ratified new student government structure.

THE STUDENT lounge in Bldg. 25 is a place where students can forget mid-terms, grades and studies for awhile.

DMACC to be exam center

DMACC will be the examination center for the professional legal secretary examination to be administered Oct. 29 and 30.

Trué Sherman, legal secretarial coordinator, will supervise the two-day testing in Bldg. 23.

The seven-part examination covers communication and secretarial skills, human relations, procedures, accounting, terminology and judgment.

To be eligible for the examination, one must be presently employed as a legal secretary with five years experience in the legal field.

DMACC and Drake have venture

Bob Mann, Reading Specialist for the Urban Center, tells of a rather unique cooperative venture between DMACC and Drake University.

It is a Reading Academy now officially funded by the Department of HEW. The purpose of this program is "to place tutors, trained and supervised by Drake's Reading and Learning Center and Urban Campus Learning Center, in various sites served by these institutions for the reading instruction of the city's functionally illiterate adult population.

"This program will offer as many illiterate adults in the Des Moines area, as can be served, an opportunity for competent one-on-one teaching," Mann said.

Birthday Blast Attracts 4,000 people

A LOCAL Sbriners group donned clown suits and delighted children throughout the afternoon.

A TIME capsule containing memorabilia from the college and surrounding communities was buried.

STUDENTS wearing DMACC T-shirts gave their time in helping passout pamphlets, serve cake and act as guides.

ONE student was reluctant to let go of her balloon.

A BICENTENNIAL flag was presented to the college by the state Bicentennial Committee.

THE DMACC chorus, conducted by Bill Johnson, presented two numbers during the recognition ceremony.

- Approximately 4,000 people attended the DMACC birthday party on Sunday, Oct. 17.
- Nontaxable funds (received from the vending machines around campus) totaling $4,000 were used for purchasing:
 - 5,000 pens
 - 1,000 small red balloons
 - 2,000 suckers
 - 3,500 brochures
 - 80,000 flyers
 - 100 T-shirts (given to students and faculty members). All was distributed throughout the days celebration.

A PARADE of antique cars drove from the Capitol grounds to the campus and remained on display throughout the afternoon.

HIGH school pep bands entertained crowds with their music.

DES MOINES-Polk County health officials thought the DMACC swine flu vaccination clinic was successful. Several thousand college people and community members were immunized.

Gift trees to be planted

Planting of the faculty gift of trees presented at the DMACC birthday party in commemoration of the college's 10th anniversary is scheduled to begin at 12 noon Oct. 26, southwest of Bldg. 31.

According to future campus development plans, the trees will be located facing the front entrance of the college.

Duane Anderson, Horticulture instructor, and the Horticulture students will be in charge of planting seven white pine trees on Oct. 26th and three Norway spruce trees on Oct. 28th.

RICK CHAPMAN, Mass Media instructor, is instrumental in providing films for student viewing.

"The Iowa Supreme Court said all juvenile probation officers appointed must complete the program in their first year of employment," he said. Snyder added that Iowa is the only state with mandatory requirements for the juvenile probation officers over and above their B.A. degree.

DMACC is the only school in Iowa with a Law Enforcement program, according to Snyder.

Speakers at the conference include: Richard Miller, president of the Iowa Juvenile Probation Officers Association; Rich Blane, assistant Polk County attorney; Dr. Sandra Natt, clinical psychologist with the Des Moines Child Guidance Center, will speak on child welfare with an emphasis on adolescent development; Mitch McCarthy, director of the ADAPT juvenile treatment facility; Larry Jannings, chief probation officer, a DMACC graduate, will speak on the rural probation officer.

Others speakers are Gary Ventling, chief probation officer, Polk County Juvenile Court and James Scheaff, DMACC instructor, will speak on treatment philosophies.

The conference in Bldg. 31, room 3125A, is open to students in the Law Enforcement program and to the public.

400 lb. cake serves 3,000

One hundred and fifty pounds of cake mix, 300 pounds of powdered sugar and 50 pounds of shortening were used in the cake served at DMACC's birthday party Oct. 17.

The five-tier cake weighed approximately 400 pounds and stood five feet tall. The bottom layer was forty-eight inches square and the top layer, eight inches square. The white cake had white butter cream icing decorated with yellow cascading roses.

Culinary students, Chris Bloebaum, Mike Marshall, Jan Piatt, and Connie Schmidt, spent six hours for two days mixing and baking the 30 sheet cakes that made up the cake.

Building Trades students made the five plywood dummy reinforcement placed between the layers. The class assembled the tapered layers Oct. 15. Icing and decorating the cake took two hours. Enough cake was baked to serve 3,000 guests.

BAKING and decorating a cake this size was a learning experience for Culinary Art students Connie Schmidt and Jan Piatt.

Peer assistants program offered

Student helping student, that is the Peer Assistants program. Through this program you will be able to help someone who is lonely. Also, you will be able to help them adjust to the campus, find information and people. The people you help might have problems with roommates or parents.

You yourself will gain experience in helping others. According to Eve Anderson, Peer Assistants Coordinator, this is a new program.

She would like to encourage students to apply. You will probably work 10-20 hours a week and training will be provided.

More information and application forms can be picked up in room 308, ext. 393.

A BIRTHDAY PARTY IS PEOPLE...

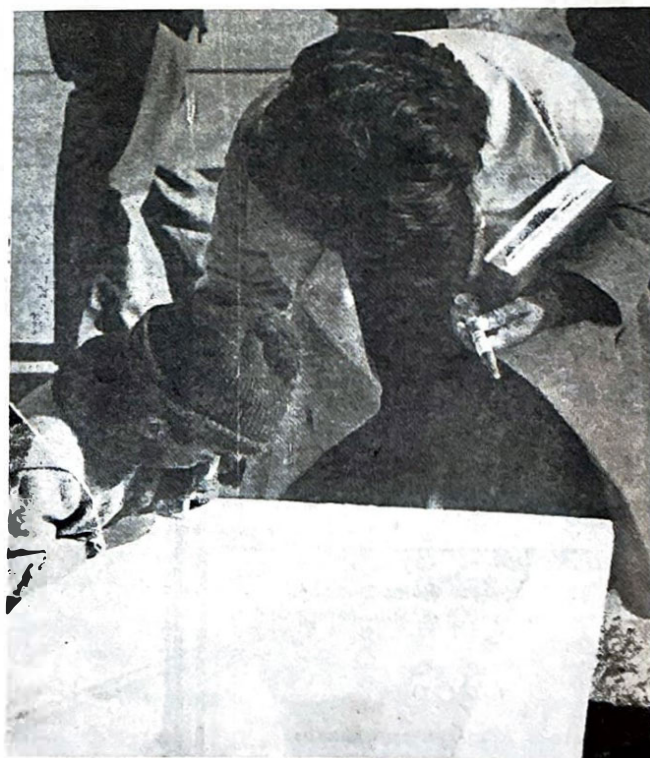

DEMONSTRATIONS on using a spinning wheel were part of the Arts and Crafts Booth at the birthday celebration.

MEMBERS of the Office of Education Association earned their money the hard way Sunday afternoon. They charged 50 cents for people to throw pies at them.

SEVERAL hundred balloons were released by students to kick off the birthday party festivities.

A LITTLE boy signs his name to the time capsule, which contains articles from the college and surrounding communities.

Students have right to examine records

All students should be aware of their rights guaranteed under the Family Education Rights and Privacy Act of 1974. The following paragraphs summarize the provisions of the act:

The student has the right to inspect and review his/her educational records. (DMACC will grant the student's right to inspect his/her educational records within 45 days of his/her request.)

The student does not have the right to inspect confidential letters and statements of recommendation which were placed in his/her educational records prior to January 1, 1975, nor to the financial records of his/her parents, nor confidential recommendations for which he/she has signed a waiver in respect to admissions, application for employment or receipt of an honorary recognition.

The student has the right to a hearing to challenge the content of his/her educational records in respect to the accuracy of such records, in respect as to whether the records are misleading or constitute a violation of his/her privacy or other rights.

The hearing shall provide the student an opportunity for the correction or deletion of inaccurate, misleading or inappropriate data and shall provide him/her the opportunity to insert in his/her records a written explanation of the contents of the records.

Except as provided for within the Act, personally identifiable information about students cannot be released without their written consent. The College may release "directory information" without his/her written consent unless he/she has specifically requested that such information be not released (see below)

The College will maintain a record of access to students educational records. This record is accessible only to the student and the staff in the Registrar's Office, or as provided for in the Act. The record of access will not carry access to educational records by officials at DMACC who have a legitimate educational interest.

The student may request and receive copies of all or part of his/her educational record. (There is a charge of 10¢ per sheet copied.)

The student has the right to request and receive a response that will explain or interpret his/her educational records.

DMACC considers the following information as public information and will release such information without the student's written consent unless he/she specifies otherwise.

1. Name
2. Address
3. Telephone number
4. Date of birth
5. Place of birth

THE Community Blood Bank received 105 pints of blood from DMACC donors. This is the largest donation they've received in all previous visits to the campus, according to Dale Wagner, Student Activities director.

Advisors to help college transfer students

The educational advisors at DMACC want to help you plan your education.

How? They do articulation information with four-year colleges and universities.

"It is compiling information from four year colleges on what credits will transfer and what courses they will need to complete major requirements," said Carol Weitzel, advisor.

They also have information on cross-enrollment to Drake and Grandview, and an extensive college catalog library.

Some of the services the advisors provide for the students are visits to the classrooms, writing letters requesting specific information, distributing information to the instructors, referrals to the Career Resource Center, and giving campus tours.

Before registration

next quarter, they urge you to come in and talk with one of them. They will be able to spend more time with you in planning your future and answer any questions you may have.

The advisors are: Mark Ritland, Sharon VanTuyl and Carol Weitzel with offices in Bldg. 24, room 2426; Mary Phillips, Bldg. 3, room 308D; and Anita Sheley of the Urban Campus.

Television satire first Drama Club play

The Drama club is planning their first play, to be presented the first part of the Winter Quarter, according to Beth Petterson, president of the club.

The play is planned to be a satire on television shows.

The Drama club is also planning a trip to Minneapolis Nov. 20 to attend a play at the Guthrie Theatre.

The club needs more actors and actresses, writers, stage hands and props. Contact Beth Petterson said. Interested students may attend meetings held every Wednesday at noon in room 3125.

Leadership conference

A second annual Student Leadership Conference is to be held Nov. 5-7. It will take place at the Iowa Conservation Camp eight miles northeast of Guthrie Center.

"If you are a student club officer, student senator, or interested in leadership skills, you may benefit from the conference," said Dale Wagner, Student Activities director.

A maximum of 28 students and 4 staff members will be selected to attend

A fee of $15 is required per person to cover the costs of six meals and two nights.

Also a registration form must be filled out to attend. Fees and forms must be turned in to the Students Activities office by Oct. 27.

For more information contact the Student Activities office, Bldg. 25, ext. 334.
